

New partnership will provide integrated, multidisciplinary services from concept to completion

The Regeneris Directors are excited to announce that Regeneris Consulting has joined the Hatch group of companies. Hatch is a forward-thinking, multidisciplinary business with global reach, combining vast technical and business acumen.

Regeneris will join Hatch's Urban Solutions practice, reshaping the world's cities through innovative technical and strategic consulting services for public and private clients. Through industry-leading social and economic research and analysis, we will work with our clients to drive smarter developments, anticipate climate change, create inclusive communities, secure financing, and increase competitiveness.

Hatch Regeneris, as a privately-held organisation, will provide evidence-based, independent solutions to our clients and collaborators; delivering holistic solutions in the UK, and beyond.

With offices in London and Manchester, Hatch Regeneris has a strong presence across the UK. The strength of this new partnership lies in the ability to draw on a global pool of leading technical experts. The combined skills and know-how of Hatch Regeneris will be readily available to solve the toughest challenges that our clients face; helping them to make better, more informed decisions.

Our leadership model will be largely unchanged; Darren Wisner will continue to lead the business as Managing Director. He will report into Bob Pell in New York, Global Managing Director of Hatch's Urban Solutions division.

We have already connected with a host of very talented technical experts within Hatch and are eager to bring our enhanced service offer forward. This is big step forward for Regeneris, and we will be in touch with clients and collaborators to outline in more detail our newly expanded suite of capabilities.
